To The Right Honourable Sir James Graham

Honoured Sir

In the case of MARY TOOMY and MARY [DONOVAN] tried and found guilty for stealing some bedclothes out of their lodgings in Horsemongor Lane, London both of this city now prisoners at Newgate and sentenced to seven years transportation.

Having received a favourable character of the above prisoners during their occupation in the city as housemaids. We have no hesitation in recommending the said prisoners to your Lordships kind consideration they having an aged and afflicted parents and the prisoners their only support.

The parents beg to say that though some misunderstanding in the part of a brother there were induced to try their fortune in London but employment having failed them and being away from their parents uncontrolled is the only inducement amounted for why they should commit an act so unpardonable.
